Description of change (omit if dropping a course or program):

In an effort to accurately track graduate student degree progress, the School of Music is updating the Masters of Music degree in Conducting: Orchestral Emphasis (CORC-MM) to reflect the coursework in which students are currently enrolling. Coursework offerings in Musicology and Music Theory have been expanded in the catalog, and other courses have been moved under updated headings for a clearer, more concise and organized view of the degree.

Supporting evidence or justification:

The proposed change will cut down on course substitutions, and will enable students and advisors the ability to appropriately plan each semester's academic coursework. The graphic above provides a clear listing of requirements, electives and number of credit hours in the degree.

The proposed changes and subsequent catalog listing will be the informational basis of the Masters degree data uploaded into PeopleSoft. Once established, tracking and degree certification will be readily available to School of Music students, advisors as well as the College of Fine Arts administration and the TCU Registrar.

Explain how the change(s) will affect the current outcomes and assessment mechanisms?

There will not be any changes that will affect current outcomes and assessment mechanisms.
